Soviet Accuses U.S. Of Massing Ships, Planes in Gulf Ārea

MOSCOW - The Soviet Union censed the United States on Wednesday of "grossly violating" international law by moving ships and aircraft to the Gulf war area. It said said the actions were creating a threat to peace and international

The Soviet news agency Tass said Moscow did not recognize the "restrictions" on air and sea traffic 'arbitrarily established" by U.S. forces in the area.

The actions taken by the United States of America in the Persian Gulf are creating a grave threat to peace and international security." Tass said in an official statement, a form of report that is rarely used and is thought to reflect the highest level of Kremlin thought.

The Tass statement came as Iraq called for an extraordinary meeting of Arab foreign ministers to discuss its 42-month war with Iran. Meanwhile, Iraqi and Iranian troops engaged in a second day of fierce fighting for Majnoon Island in the Iraqi marshlands. There are buge oil reserves under the island.

Government sources in Baghdad said Iraqi helicopter gunships shot down two Iranian helicopters in attacks to recapture the island. But Iran said the counterattack was firmly checked, leaving 850 enemy troops killed" and called the action "nothing less than large-scale sui-

Tass said that "dozens of U.S. warships bave been massed" in the Gulf. In addition, it said, the U.S. Air Force was constandy flying patrol missions in the region.

The agency dismissed U.S. statements that its ships and planes had been sent to the Gulf only to protect shipping and aircraft amid fighting by Iran and Iraq.

Tass accused the United States of arbitrarily establishing a safe shipping zone, "grossly violating the commonly recognized norms of

It cited the 1958 open seas con-vention and the Chicago conven-tion on international civil aviation as accords it believed the United States had breached.

U.S. action in the Gulf amounted to nothing more than an "attempt by the United States to confirm by a massive show of armed sian Gulf as another area of U.S. 'vital interests,' " Tass said. The agency added: "Washington would like to dictate its will to the countries of the region.

The presence of U.S. armed forces was "provoking a conflict sinuation" in the region, Tass said. The U.S. government should understand that it will bear full responsibility for the possible dangerous consequences of its policy and for its attempt to interfere in what is taking place in the Persian Gulf area," the statement conclud-

In London, Roger Lowes of Lloyd's shipping agency said the British bulk carrier Charming and the Turkish cargo ship Sema-G were both hit March 1, apparently by missiles. Eight Iranian soldiers and two crewmen were reported killed in the attack on the Turkish ship. Mr. Lowes said.

The Turkish ship Sema was damaged mainly in the No. 2 hatch with eight Iranian soldiers and two crew killed," Mr. Lowes added. Substanual damage was inflicted on the British ship, causing some injuries but no deaths, he said. Neither vessel sank.

The Lloyd's report was the first Western confirmation of concerted Iraqi action against foreign shipping there, although Apecjay Lines in Bombay said Sunday its API Ambika, a 16,000-ton vessel, had also been hit by an Iraqi missile in Agents said independent information on the attacks was slow getting out because ships operating in the Gulf often operate in radio silence to avoid detection.

Confirmation of the attacks on the British and Turkish vessels came after London insurance underwriters doubled war-risk coverage rates in the Gulf area.

Lloyd's announced an increase Tuesday in war risk rates on ships traveling to the area, in what a spokesman said was the largest hike since the war began.

According to reports received by the United States and its allies, most of which have come from Western military attachés in Damasons, the split reached a high point last week, when rivals hoping to succeed the Syrian president put on competing shows of military force in the capital. There were reports of shots being fired around the presidential palace.

South Africa Reports Namibian Infiltration

By Alan Cowell New York Times Service

"JOHANNESBURG - Military authorities in South-West Africa say 800 insurgents have infiltrated into the territory in recent weeks from bases in Angola.

The reported infiltration coincides with a U.S.-sponsored "disen-gagement" of South African forces from positions in southern Angola occupied during operations ostensibly designed to thwart insurgent buildaps.

The military authorities also reported an upsurge in insurgent at-tacks during February, the month during which the "disengagement" took shape with the formation of a South African-Angolan commission to monitor its implementation.

The insurgents are from the So-viet-armed South-West Africa People's Organization, the most prominent groop contesting South Africa's control of South-West Africa, which is widely known as Namibia. The insurgents have been fighting a guerrilla war for 18 years. The campaign against the guerrillas is being conducted by the South African Defense Force and the South-West Africa Territorial Force, in a statement issued this week in Windhoek, the capital, the Territorial Force said the number of insurgents in the northern part of Namibia, where the war is concentrated, had risen from 80 in mid-February to more than 800. It said the number of incidents involving insurgents had risen from 21 in December 1983 to 58 in February, most of them in the second Contractor of

Thatcher Refects French Plan for EC

PARIS (Reuters) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has rejected a proposal by President François Mitterrand that would have adjusted British value-added tax payments into the European Community budget, French officials said Wednesday. The plan would not have revised the overall British payment.

Mrs. Thatcher also appeared to be unwilling to consider a temporary solution involving a repayment for a year or two, they said. She made her position clear when Mr. Mitterrand, presiding over the EC for the first half of this year, traveled Monday to Britain for talks that centered on the budget issue.

The officials said the British contribution was now the main obstacle to agreement at a summit meeting March 19 in Brussels on financial reform for the EC, which is near bankruptcy. Mrs. Thatcher says she will not agree to raising extra cash for the community until there is a fairer formula for calculating national payments into the budget. Britain contends that its payments to the EC widely exceed its benefits.

MADRID (UPI) — French Navy ships fired Wednesday on two Spanish fishing boats off the southern French coast, injuring as many as nine fishermen, according to radio reports from the Spanish fishing fleet. The reports led the Spanish Foreign Ministry to summon the French ambassador, Pierre Guidoni, for an explanation.

Three of the fishermen may have been injured seriously by injurithern spain. There was no immediate official confirmation of the injuries. The trawlers, the "Valle de Atxondo" and the "Burgoamendi," were being escorted by French ships to the port of Lorient in Brittany, the Spanish Foreign Ministry said.

French government sources said only that two naval slips fired warning shots to prevent the boats from escaping a license check. The incident took place about 100 miles (160 kilometers) off the southern French coast, outside French territorial waters but within the French economic zone defined by European Community rules, the sources said.

Italy, U.S. Sign Pacts for 2 Satellites

ROME (AP) - Italy and the United States signed agreements Wednesday to develop two satellites, one to be tethered to a U.S. space shuttle and the other to help observe the Earth's crust. In addition, the United States invited Italy to take part in a permanent space station. Under the first agreement, Italy will help develop a project called the tethered satellite system," involving a satellite that would be linked b cable to the space shuttle to conduct experiments. The second accord calls for Italy to take part in developing a satellite under a project called LAGEOS II. That satellite would help study earthquakes, especially in the Mediterranean region.

The administrator for the National Aeronantics and Space Administration, James M. Beggs, invited Italy to take part in developing the manned space station, which he said he hopes will be operational in 1992. Mr. Beggs also said that NASA was inviting Japan, Canada and other industrialized allies in Western Europe to take part. President Rouald Reagan announced the program in January.

WASHINGTON - Mure than a decade ago, as college students marched and protested against the Vietnam War, a prime larget of their outrage was the presence on eampuses of the Reserve Officers Training Corps.

ROTC buildings were occupied, sometimes looted and burned, and the ROTC military study program, which offers financial assistance to students who promise to join the armed forces ofter graduation, was driven off campus at many schools. At colleges where the program survived, the number of cadets plummered.

But today, with college tuition and housing costs rising, the ROTC is enjoying new-found popularity. Indeed, as the national agony of the Vietnam years recedes, students see the ROTC as an educational and career opportunity, as well as a way to demonstrate their patriotism. "I am aware of the problems in the 1960s," said Kevin Conowitch, a Navy ROTC midshipman and senior at the University of California, Los Angeles, "But that was a long time ago. We were maybe 3 or 4 years old." Captain John Fowler of the army said protesters threw stones at him when he wore his dress uniform on graduation Captain Fowler, who directs the Army ROTC program at San Jose State University in California, said: "We are at least passively accepted now. Cadets don't get the comments they used to while walking across campus.

In fact, enrollment in army, pavy and air force ROTC programs in the post-Vietnam era has nearly doubled. This year, 108,210 college students are involved, compared with 59,926 in 1974. Almost three-fourths will join the army.

Applications to the U.S. military academies also are booming to record or near-record levels. The Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, the Naval Academy in Annapolis, Maryland, and the U.S. Military Academy in West Point, New York, bave received more than 36,000 applications for about 4,200 openings in next fall's entering classes. The tide of conservatism that swept Ronald Reagan into the White House in 1981 helped provide a boost for the status of the military. This motivated many students to enroll in the ROTC or apply to the service academies.

Anthony Harris, an air force cadet at the University of Southern California, said: "I was looking for an opportunity for leadership and an opportunity to get my education. They both came together in the ROTC."

Like many other cadets, Mr. Harris, 20, said that he approves of President Reagan's foreign policy. He said he is not concerned about whether he might get sent to such crisis areas as the Middle East or Ceotral America.

"Even if I was not in ROTC and we got involved in something. I would volunteer," he said. "So it doesn't make much difference." What does make a difference to many students is the financial aid that the military offers them

ROTC students receive an average of $1,250 a year each. depending on the program, for their junior and senior years and promise in return, to serve as military officers for three to six vears.

The most academically promising ROTC students are offered full-tuition scholarships, while the military academies provide free tuition for their programs, which is estimated by some academy officials to be worth $150,000 over "I just felt like I wanted to do something for my country. four years.

Senate Republican Leaders Offer Compromise on School Prayer Plan

By Steven V. Roberts Ven York Times Service

WASHINGTON - In an aitempt to win over wavering legislators, Senate Republican leaders have agreed on a compromise version of a proposed constitutional amendment permitting organized prayer in public schools.

The changes was aimed at a small group of legislators who were uneasy with the original measure. but were prepared to vote for some sort of prayer amendment. Their main fear was that local authorities could force children to participate in vocal worship. As originally written, the proposed amendment said that "nothing in this Constitution shall be construed to prohibit individual or group prayer in public schools or other public institutions." The new version, which was formally submitted to the Senate on Tuesday night, would add the words "vocal or silent" after the phrase "individual or group.

In another clause that would bar federal or state authorities from composing a prayer, the compro-mise would also prevent such authorities from "mandating" a pray-

Other new language would permit religious groups to use public huildings for their activities.

Republican who helped create the compromise, said the new version contains "the principle of choosing between silent and vocal prayer." Senate vote-counters generally agreed that the original version of the amendment, which came to the Senate floor Monday, could not command the two-thirds vote necessary for approval. But opponents of any amendment said Tuesday night that the new version might stand a better chance.

Senator Lowell P. Weicker Jr., a Connecticut Republican who is leading the opposition, said there was a "good possibility" that some wavering legislators would now support the amendment, but he said the outcome was still in doubt.

Mr. Weicker said the new language was still unacceptable to him because it continued to permit government sanctions for religious ob-servances in the public schools. Senator John C. Danforth, a Missouri Republican and Episcomuch of the nation. The bill, passed Tuesday on a voice vote and sent to the Senate, would increase to $2.07 billion the amount of federal money available this winter to help the poor and the needy elderly pay for heating their homes and apartments.

The Killing Was in Vain

Amin Gemayel's cancellation of a security pact with Israel confirms that for the first time Israel has lost not a peace, as it contends, but a war. It was an optional war because Israel faced no mortal threat in 1982. It was a limited war because Syria, although humiliated by the Israeli air force, fought back mostly by political means, Israel's defeat is therefore far from fatal. But it was a defeat nonetheless.

Israel sacrificed hundreds of soldiers and thousands of Lebanese lives to the goal of bringing Lebanon into its political orbit and commanding it to sign a lasting peace. That signature has now been erased. The rontless peace has collapsed. The killing was in vain.

In Israel and America, too, one hears the familiar cry that politicians, not soldiers, caused the defeat. Well, of course politicians are to hlame for sending soldiers on an unat-tainable mission. But the apologists for this war also complain that General Sharon should have been given time to "finish off" his enemies in Berrut ... that America, instead of brokering a cease-fire, should have intervened against Syria ... that Israel should have horne the price of occupying Lebanon indefinitely ... that President Reagan should have helped with 10,000 marines, not a mere 1,600. But no amount of force could have redesigned Lehanon. Its feuding sects are not just quarrelsome neighbors; they are trihal enemies, each with its own militia, bearing the grievances of generations. The dominance of the Christians that Israel tried to restore has long since been ended by the growth of Mos-lem populations. And despite the divisions among them the Moslems preferred alliance with Syria, against the Israeli-blessed Christians, to the figment of national independence. Former Prime Minister Begin and General Sharon thought that hy destroying the PLO they could keep the Phalangist Christians in power for another generation. They would wrest the country from Syria's influence and reward themselves with a second peace treaty. That they had miscalculated was clear in just a few days, when Bashir Gemayel, their chosen ally, balked at the demand for a full peace. His assassination, probably by Syrians, left the Israelis without even a nominal ally.

Amin Gemayel may or may not he a weaker leader than his brother, but he has had to play the same weak hand against Syrian-hacked Moslems. At the bidding of U.S. and Saudi diplomats he finally signed the security pact that gave Israel an illusion of accomplishment. But Israel tired of keeping troops around to support that illusion, and Syria, waiting patiently, has now been able to puncture it. Syria well knows that it lost the military battle to Israel, Israel now knows that it does not want to pay the price of fighting Syria for only diplomatic gain. So the two are effectively deterred and bound to find a tacit equilibrium in Lebanon, as they have in the Golan region. Such a standoff often leads to a highly productive diplomacy. But first the political systems of the region must adjust to the new condition and throw up leaders who will read it creatively. Leaders who fight a had war are unlikely to make a good peace.

About Taxing Oil Imports

Energy is ton cheap for America's own good. Senator Gary Hart is quite right about that. But he has the wrong remedy. Some time ago, in a proposal to reduce dependence on oil ago, in a proposal to reduce dependence on oil from the Gulf region, he suggested a tax of $10 a barrel on imported oil. Now the idea has reappeared in the debates among the Democrats running for the presidential comination. A few days ago Walter Mondale said it "may be the worst idea in the campaign." No. it is certainly not that. But it needs work.

The trouble with an import tax is that the price of imported oil seis the price for all domestic American oil. The first effect of a $10 tax on a barrel of Gulf oil would be a price increase of $10 on all the other barrels from Texas and California and so forth. The tax on the imports would raise about $18 billion a year, but the increase in cost to the consumer would be in the range of $60 billion - more than two-thirds of it going to the domestic oil-producing industry, a business that is already more than adequately profitable. But Mr. Hart is on the right track. The real price of crude oil, taking inflation into account, has falleo about one-third in the United States sioce its peak in March 1981. As oil gets cheaper, people are using more of it. Oil consumption is now rising again for the first time since 1978. Because America's oil fields pro-duce continuously at full capacity, the increase in consumption falls entirely on imports; and because most of the world's unused capacity is in the Gulf region, it falls disproportionately on Gulf producers. That would be a reason for concern even if there were not a war there.

The sensible answer is a tax, but it needs to have the least possible effect on industry and jobs. How about a tax on gasoline?

jobs. How about a tax on gasoline?

Three years ago the price of a galloo of unleaded regular gasoline was, translated into today's dollars, $1.62. Currently the same galloo goes for about $1.22. Since each penny on a gallon of gas raises $1 hillion in federal revenue, six ply re-establishing that 1981 price would bring in $40 billion a year. Can consumers afford to pay it? Yes, because, in fact, they did. It would cost the public far less than the $10-a-harret tax on imports, but raise twice as much revenue. It would be a serious and submuch revenue. It would be a serious and substantial down payment on the Reagan deficit, unlike the one that Mr. Reagan is talking about. It would support the endangered trends toward small cars and fuel conservation. The worst idea of the campaign? Far from it. - THE WASHINGTON POST.

Other Opinion

Dr. Henry Kissinger's critique of NATO has generated some alarm in European capitals. The outgoing NATO secretary-general, Dr. Joseph Luns, has described Dr. Kissinger's words as "a bolt from the blue." There is a sense of shock that the supposedly Eurocentric Kissinger should want to rock the boat.

In fact. Dr. Kissinger's remarks are not at all out of character. He has for years been anxious about the credibility of NATO's central doctrine of flexible response, at times quite explicitly so. He is possessed of a restless intellect which is challenged rather than dismayed by bureaucratic rigidities. Above all, Dr. Kissinger hopes to be invited to serve as secretary of state in a second-term Reagan administration.

Neither is the Kissinger thesis quite as dramatic as it has been made out to be. He does not suggest that NATO is in imminent danger of disintegratioo. His theme is that the alliance is manifesting a number of unhealthy symptoms which largely stem from a 35-year-old institutional settlement which no longer corresponds to political or economic reality. In particular, he ascribes the fractiousness between Europeans and Americans to Europe's "junior partner" role, which rohs it of both self-respect and a proper sense of responsibility for its own defense.

The other flaw in NATO which concerns Dr. Kissinger is the paradox of European governments which are increasingly queasy (rightly so) about relying upon the early use of nuclear weapons to repel a Warsaw Pact invasion hut unwilling to match with conventional

The Philippines and America

Considering the immense value of the Philppine-American security alliance to the security of the Pacific region, it would be tragic if President Ferdinand Marcos were to talk himself into a comer on the question of letting American bases remain on Philippine soil. Of course he is having a hard time on the diplomatic front. First President Ronald Reagan decided not to visit. Now the Foreign Affairs Committee of the U.S. House of Representatives wants to cut military aid to make the Marcos government concentrate on solving severe financial and economic problems, reduce alleged human rights abuses and re-store democracy. It was a natural reaction for Mr. Marcos to tell the Philippine Military Academy: "Our freedom as people and our sovereignty are much too precious to be entrusted to friends." But it amounts to saying that he is prepared to kick out U.S. forces and scrap the two countries' historic security alliance. Nations that wish the Philippines well can only hope that the president would find it possible to speak with greater moderation. - The Singapore Monitor.

Moscow Ought to Sidestep This Obsession

BERLIN—Andrei Sinyavksy, the Soviet dissident writer, asserted in a recent interview that the Russian exile community in the West is dominated by the nationalist and nativist views of another distinguished writer in exile, Alexander Solzhenitsyn. These views have profound ronts in Russian civilization, which has always been torn between "Westernizers," drawn to liberal West European ideas, and others who are convinced that Russia is a unique civilization endangered by liberal ideas and having a saving mission of its own to the rest of the world. Mr. Solzhenitsyn believes that the West is responsible for the ideas and movements which destroyed holy Russia. He thinks that the West is itself sick, riddled with false ideas and self-indulgence. And, according to Mr. Sinyavsky, he helieves that the West is also filled with fear and hatred for the Russian people.

Mr. Sinyavsky coocludes: "For decades the Soviet Communist Party has been telling the Russian people that the imperialist world wants to destroy them. Now the ordinary Russian hears Solzhenitsyn oo Western radio stations confirm-ing this idea. It is pregnant with the idea of war."

This is a warning which Soviet specialists in touch with the West have been giving for some time: that Russian history, and particularly the experience of World War II, bas produced deepseated fears and patterns of behavior among both the Russian people and Soviet elites which have been reawakened by the recent policies of the U.S. government and by the language Washington bas recently employed.

Things have been said in Washington that seem to deny to the Soviet Union a legitimate role in the affairs of the world. Behind this,

Russian elites believe they see a denial of the legitimacy of the Soviet state itself, even of its right to exist, "You think that only you exist," says one such Russian, who knows the United States well. "You are determined to coerce us to behave how you want us to behave. Well, we will not suhmit. Russians are your equals."

This is far from the confident "we will bury you" which Americans have been led to expect from Moscow. It is an expression of determination, hut also of apprehension, pessimism, even of resignation and fear. For if there is to be deepened conflict between the two countries, a very hleak future is implied for Russia, Bad as the Soviet Union's civilian economy is today, poor as Russian living conditions are by comparison with even Eastern Europe, these would become worse in a new and prolooged cold war. And there seems nothing the Soviets can do. Desperate as they may become, even aggressive war can promise no solution.

But it is an important truth that nations should not be pushed against locked doors. There are some in the Uoited States who do think that the West is in a position to break the Soviet Union, and should try to do so. But this is oot the policy of the present government in Washington. thing to be said to Soviet leaders. They hold levers able to change their situation. They are responsible for their plight, and they can ease it. Let them hreak off the dialogue with Washington, if they like. The world is not totally made up of Russia and the United States.

The Soviet Union could make an immense difference in its own, and the international, situa-tion by ending the war in Afghanistan. It does not need the United States for that. It needs Pakistan, first of all, Pakistan would certainly supply political and security guarantees neces-sary to a neutralization of Afghanistan under a leadership acceptable to the Afghan people. The Soviet government could offer the West European powers new and serious proposals for reducing the levels of both nuclear and cooventional forces in Central Europe. It could seek from the Europeans a new way to guarantee Russia's own security, substituting political guarantees for the sterile military confrontation that oow exists. If Moscow could find agreement with West Europeans, Washington would have little choice but to acquiesce.

But Moscow is as obsessed with America as the Reagan administration is obsessed with inter-oational communism. Moscow finds in this rival-ry confirmation of its own rank, assurance of its owo significance. The world would be a better place without these obsessions, but can Russians, or Americans, escape their grip?

Awaiting The Real Mondale

By Meg Greenfield

W ASHINGTON — Everyone is offering Walter Mondale advice. I don't know about him, but I veread most of it and it seems pretty good to me. The problem is that none of this advice is likely to cure what is really ailing the Mondale campaign. It seems to me that Mondale as a campaigner has several built-in dehilities and that he will either win in soite of them or not at all.

spite of them or not at all.

The first of these puts me in mind The first of these puts me in mind of Hubert Humphrey. I know this is a hopelessly "in-sy" Washington ohservation, hut not since Mr. Humphrey, in my judgment, has there been a public figure whose private, one-on-one or small-group personality was more startingly different from the first that is proceeded on from the fud that is projected on television. It doesn't even need to be television. Put the man behind a podium lonking out on several hundred folks in the great hall of some local organization or other, and there you have it again; pure fud.

I do not know why this is true of Mr. Mondale, any more than I could ever figure it out in the case of Mr. Humphrey. You don't have to think that Mr. Mondale should be presi-dent or that his programs and ideas are the best in the world to know something else about him: Like Mr. Humphrey as an individual, the actu-al Mondale is lively, funny, sharp, smart as hell and a good guy — and he is apparently unable to convey as much on the campaign trail.

Like Mr. Humphrey he comes on, or at least translates somehow, as irredeemably goody-goody and dull. This happened to Mr. Mondale when he made a pass at running be-fore. I recall the time when he went to

New York to address Americans for Democratie Action. If ever there was a match of man to audience, that was surely it. He bombed. He was dull. He isn't dull. But his public perso-na much of the time is, I say much of the time, because it is of course true that, like Mr. Humphrey also, there are occasions on which Mr. Mondale can ignite an nudience, bringing it to explosive life.

But we aren't seeing many of those, and for this there seems to me to be a reasoo; the circumstances—even the particular "blessiogs" - of Mr.

particular "blesstogs" — of Mr. Mondale's campaign status so far this year are of a kind guaranteed to make his built-in debilines worse.

All that endorsement and first-in-the-class status has done two things. It has given him a motive — protecting his lead, not rocking the boat — for not trains to liven things up, and for not trying to liven things up, and it has lent his already pronounced tendency to look fuddish on the campaign frail an aspect of smugness, preting the laws to favor U.S. compa-

Mr. Mondale, a man whose true nature is nothing like this, nonetheless has managed to date to convey it almost unbearably

I am not sure that with all the best advice in the world Mr. Mondale can overcome the effects of this. Television campaigning and the lickle, of-ten idiotic attentions of the several thousand (or is it million) media camp followers who go from cancus to caucus and trend to trend may just be ton much for his candidacy.

And as a one-time vice president he is also subject to the great cam-paign whiplash that one-time vice presidents must endure. First he will be compelled - in the name of being his own man — to show be was different from or at odds with his president. Next, if he does this, he will be seen as two-faced, weak, self-serving,

I am not asking you to shed tears for Mr. Mondale. He is the one who has to redeem his campaign, if it can be done. And it will surely never be done if he comes on now as the disappointed teacher's pet, the angry, they-had-no-right-to-do-this-to-me lad who points out (tattles on) the other kids' misconduct. No, the question is whether Mr. Mondale can manage now, at this late date, to convey his authentic self to the voters.

Is he constitutionally able to do it?

And if he is, is he willing to take a chance on himself?

1909: Italian Voters Shun Change PARIS - The result of the general Parliamentary Elections in Italy may be summed up in two words: beati possedentes. The party in power has won all along the line. Shortly after the closing of the polls, the victory of 340 Ministerialists out of a Chamber of 508 Deputies was announced, so that Signor Giolitti is already assured of a majority of 182. The tendency of the voting was toward the Left, the Socialist element returning to the Montecitorio in increased strength. HAMBURG — An old dream came true late last year for many West Germans when one of their compatriots, the physicist Ulf Merbold, tonk part in a flight of the U.S. space shuttle Columbia. Bin West German participation in the 10-day flight seems to me to have been a largely futile and unneces

But a drawback to Mr. Merbold's voyage was the price tag. West Ger-man taxpayers picked up roughly half the $1-hillion hill that the European Space Agency paid to have its reusable Spacelab carried into orbit by the shuttle. The bill, the result of an agree-ment concluded with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration a decade ago, included training for Mr. Merbold and several other West Europeans. The agreement was badly negotiated by the Euro-peans, who gave Spacelab away after the flight - probably one of the most expensive gifts ever re-ceived by the United States. By Gunter Haaf

Meanwhile, no other European has been scheduled to take part in any upcoming shuttle flight. Supporters of West Germany's commitment to space are unruffled. In their view the logical next step is West European involvement with the United States in a manned space station, and they are ready to invest heavily in the program.

But there is a serious question whether there is a scientific, technological or economic need to send humans into space. From the start the decision to launch Spacelab was essentially political. Many of its experiments became obsolete because of delays, and dealing with the U.S and European space bureaucracies sapped the energy of the technicians on the project.

Nor is it certain that the West

Europeans ought to continue with space flights to demonstrate their technological prowess. Prodded by the French, they have developed the expendable, unmanned Ariane launcher as a successful and competitive alternative.

Visionaries see factories in orbit producing exotic alloys and pharmaceutical innovations in the zerogravity environment, ft remains to be seen, however, whether such goods can be marketed, considering what production costs will be. Also unsure is whether humans -who cannot help but cause vihra-tions amid the finely tuned instru-ments — are needed for manufacturing in space, except perhaps for occasional repairs. Scientists are starting to say that astronauts could be replaced by robots.

Researchers at NASA and at the European Space Agency are explor-ing the possibility of an unmanned space station, to be placed in orbit cither by the manned shuttle or by an improved version of Ariane. The ESA is designing a prototype called Eureca, about half the size of Spacelab. Launched by the U.S. shuttle on a commercial basis, it could remain in orbit for months before recovery and reuse.

Europe stands to benefit from dispensing with astronams. Costs would be lightened, along with reli-ance on U.S. launch support, and Europe could perhaps take the lead in automated production in space. All will depend on whether politicians can resist the publicity of "the right stuff" and settle for a more ober, practical approach.

The nations that have suffered under the Soviet yoke for 40 years can-not help being apprehensive, as en-tente might further consolidate the Soviet hold upon our countries. Yet we, too, do not want the catachysm of a new world war. We applaud the president's gesture, but we are con-vinced that he will not let us down. We want the Soviet Union to return to its 1938 borders and let us live as free human beings who freely choose our way of life. For this, America and the other democracies must unite. The Soviets should not he helped. Let them reap the fruits of their own communist "paradise."

MANAGUA - Nicaraguan of-ficials say that rebels fighting to twerthrow their government have shown new skill in recent days. planting mines in at least one harhor and launching a series of coordinated air and sea attacks.

coordinator of the governing junta, and Foreign Mioister Miguel d'Es-coto Brockmann, have publicly asserted that the attacks reflect decisions by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency and the Honduran government to provide more direct support to the rebels.

Before dawn Monday, according to a Nicaraguan communique, three soldiers were killed and three wounded when their patrol boat was attacked near Honduras in the Gulf of Fonseca. A Nicaraguan military officer said that the boat and two others near it were first shot at from a passing launch and then attacked by airplanes that appeared to have flown from the dithat rebels had, for insurgents reportedly also killed 14 Nicaraguan militiamen early Saturday in a mortar attack on the horder village of Waspan. A spokesman for the Nicaraguan army, Lieutenant Commander Roberto Sanchez, said that the mortars had been fired from inside Honduras and that the episode marked "the first time our territory has come under sustained mortar attack from Honduras."

Waspan, which was evacuated by the government a year ago and is now populated only by soldiers, is a few bundred yards from the Commander Sånchez also said that rebels had, for the first time, inside Nicaraguan territory. He said that at least half of the casualties in the weekend attack on Waspan were caused by mines.

He said that these attacks had been carried out by commando units that had been newly trained by the CIA and that included Americans and Argentines as well as Nicaraguans. He said that his information came from Nicaraguan iotelligence reports "that l know it to be true but I cannot give you absolute proof."

Aid for U.K. In Falklands

By Michael Getler

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Navy was willing to lend Britain an aircraft carrier during its 1982 war to retake the Falkland Islands from Argentina if the Royal Navy lost either of its two carriers, Defense Department officials have said.

Although an offer to use the amphibious assault ship Guarn was not made because the need did not arise, officials said such discussions took place as part of a large-scale effort to try to ensure that Britain's 100-ship armada did not meet de-feat 8,000 miles (almost 13,000 kiloweters) from home.

Pentagon officials were asked Tuesday about the U.S. role in the Falklands crisis, which began with the Argentine seizure of the islands on April 2 and ended June 14 after the British recaptured them. The questions followed a report on U.S. help that appeared Friday in the British magazine The Economist.

The magazine said the Falklands campaign "could not have been mounted, let alone won, without American help.

Ven Tork Times Service NEW YORK — Researchers know that sexual fantasies tell much about one's sexuality, hut just how much they tell has been debated for decades. The most recent evidence sheds light on several important aspects of the issue: what the fantasies say about one's sexual orientation. what the most common fantasies are, when they are healthy and when pathological, and what they indicate about a couple's relationship.

The latest contribution to the issue is from the Masters and Johnson Institute in a recent article on their treatment program for dissatisfied homosexuals. Researchers at the institute believe that whether a person has homosexual fantasies or heterosexual ones cannot be used as an indication of actual sexual preference. New Agent Is Used to Dissolve Clots

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Researchers say a new serum that may someday be used by paramedics to stop heart attacks could be ready for use on the general public in two years.

Scientists at Johns Hopkins University said Tuesday that the genetically engineered human protein has been used on three patients in recent weeks. The scientists said the new agent safely dissolves blood clots, which form in the coronary arteries of up to 90 percent of the 1 million heart attack victims in the United States each year.

"We think this is an exciting new agent for which there is data showing it is the most effective and safe in dissolving blood clots." said Dr. Myron Weisfeldt, director of cardiology at Johns Hopkins and City hospitals. The new agent, approved by the Food and Drug Administration two weeks ago for investigative use, is being used in concurrent experiments at Johns Hopkins, Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston and at Washington University in St. Louis. In one type of strabismus, the inner eye muscles are contracted more than the outer ones. Children often require corrective surgery to realign their eyes. But Dr. Buckley treats the children by injecting trny amounts of the botulinum toxin into the overcontracted inner eye muscles. The toxin paralyzes the muscle and prevents transmission of messages from nerves to muscles. The weaker outer muscles can more easily contract and pull the eyes into proper alignment.

Russians Report Ancient Drop of Water

MOSCOW (AP) - Soviet scientists have found a drop of water they estimate to be 50 million years old and hope that study of its content will yield additional data about those ancient times. Radio Moscow said. The radio said that the drop of water was "conserved in a small prism of rock crystal found by geologists" in the Pamir Mountains in Central

The age of the water was estimated by evaluating the age of the crystal.

Girl to Get a Synthesized Voice

BIRMINGHAM, England (Reuters) — A teen-age girl will soon "speak" for the first time, using a push-button machine with a voice borrowed from another girl.

Tracey Bates, 15, left speechless by a virus infection when she was a baby, is to have a pocket-size microchip voice-synthesizer that speaks in her local accent, built by a team of experts at the communications aid center in West Bromwich near here.

A bio-engineer, Dr. Clive Thursfield, who leads the team, said: "We want Tracey to regard the voice as her own. We went to a great deal of trouble to find the right voice with the right accent." The machine will have a vocabulary of some 250 words and by pushing numbered buttons, the girl will be able to construct and "speak" simple sentences.

WALL STREET WATCH

Analyst Sees New Problems Gives Rate For Reagan in Hart's Rise

By EDWARD ROHRBACH

International Herald Tribune s if Wall Street did not already have enough of a stew to worry over this year — the heating economy, bubbling interest rates — there is also a presidential election, and

Two months ago, Jeffrey M. Applegate, a political economist for E.F. Hutton based in Washington, said the financial community's "overwhelming consensus" was that Ronald Reagan would be re-elected and that this was "already in the stock market."

Bul now Mr. Applegate contends that sentiment toward a Reagan victory is ebbing from Wall Street, and not just because stock prices have tumbled since then. "I see concern in the market that Mr. Reagan is doing so bittle about the budget deficit. People in the financial community Colorado senator are getting downright nasty and he's become vulnerable because of it."

Additionally, here is the "rocketing" emergence of Gary Hart, who Mr. Applegate says must be considered the new front-runner for the Democratic nomination after his victories in primaries and caucuses in New Hampshire, Maine

The Hutton specialist said Mr. Hart's "neoliberal" stance means that he is right of center on economic and defense issues—two areas that count most on Wall Street—and left of center on social and foreign policy matters.

Mr. Applegate, noting that the Colorado senator has been elected twice in a conservative state, asserted that Mr. Hart "can hit the president where it hurts." He can do that, Mr. Applegate said, by promising to slow the rate of military spending by about $100 billion over the next five years and help lower interest rates as the budget deficit declines, Wall Street, like much of the country, is just beginning to analyze Senator Hart "after its visceral negative reaction because he's a Democrat," Mr. Applegate said. While Mr. Mondale could be dismissed as representing the traditional party preference for employment incentives over worry about inflation.

Mr. Hart will provide the financial community with more

"Gary Hart wants the marketplace to pick the winners from the losers, not the government," Mr. Applegate said, noting the candidate's opposition to loan guarantees for Chrysler. He is also against trade protectionism.

To summarize the difference between the two Democrats, I'd say Mondale is for wealth redistribution while Hari stands for wealth creation, and that's an idea always warm to Wall Street." Whoever the Democrats nominate, however, Mr. Applegate's "gut feeling" is that Mr. Reagan will be returned to office. On the United Press International WASHINGTON - Paul A. Volcker, the Federal Reserve Board chairman, warned savings and loan executives Wednesday they face imminent danger if lederal deficits drive up interest rates. But he called the economy "very strong" in many respects. Mr. Volcker spoke briefly to a convention of the National League of Savings Institutions, telling the thrift executives, "Yours is an industry at the break-even point or a little better."

Volcker Warning

If interest rates go up, he said "The improvement that has been made evaporates rather quickly."

"There can't be any question that given all the other developments, whatever they may be — and of course the economy looks very strong in a number of direc-tions — the deficits that we lace put pressures on in only one direction."

Oddly, Mr. Volcker's reference to a strong economy was sour news for analysis on Wall Street, who have seen stock prices driven down by waves of pessisim. 11 Mr. Volcker believes the economy is strong, their reasoning goes, it could mean increased competition for credit and higher interest rates.

Offer Marks Course Shift for Socal

Firm Reduces Its Emphasis On Exploration

By Thomas C. Hayes New York Times Service

SAN FRANCISCO - Three years ago. George M. Keller put Wall Street on notice that Stan-dard Oil Co. of California would not step into the multibilliondollar bidding tracas among major oil companies. because we can find reserves cheaper ourselves."

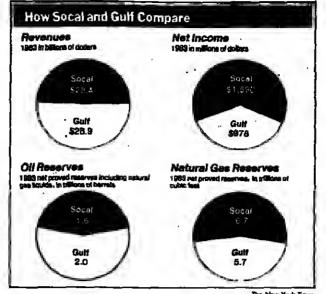

Certainly. Standard of Cali-fornia, the sixth-largest oil com-pany in the United States, with $28.4 billion in sales last year. has been considered a heavyspending oil prospector. It had invested $3.3 billion in exploration last year, including its leading stake in the promising Santa Maria Basin olf the coast of Southern California.

But Mr. Keller and his colleagues at Socal, as the company is commonly known, clearly became convinced that there was a price at which wading into the high-stakes takeover wars hecame irresistible. And Monday, Gulf Corp. accepted Socal's olfer to buy Gulf in what would be the biggest price ever paid in a corporate acquisioon, a mini-mum of $13.2 billion.

Since Gulf has also granted Socal an option to buy 30.5 million treasury shares at $80 a share, the total value of the transaction could be as much as $13.4 billion. The option arrangement is seen as giving Socal more power to battle any rival takeover hids for Gulf. Industry analysts say that Socal began to see the logic of finding reserves through acquisition, instead of drilling, earlier this year when Texaco Inc. bought Getry Oil Co. for $10.2 billion in what was then the biggest corporate takeover. "I detected some wistful feelings among their people that they hadn't moved more quickly on Getty," said Herbert A. Hart. an oil-industry analyst with Rowe & Pittman, a brokerage house here. "They learned that sometimes you can huy reserves lor less on Wall Street."

Rosario llacqua, an analyst with L.F. Rothschild, Unterberg. Towbin in Manhattan, said that Socal's interest in Gulf had also been fueled by a desire to at least retain, if not better, its stature among the industry's giants. "Whether or not you make money on a merger this hig is always debatable. Mr. llacqua said. "But you also want to protect your position in the industry."

Mr. Keller, who is 60 years old and in his third year as Socal's chairman and chiel executive. could not be reached for comment. He was en route here from Pittsburgh Tuesday after wrapping up negotiations with Gulf's chairman, James E. Lee, which began with a phone call from Mr. Lee "in late February," according to Guy M. Carruthers, a Socal spokesman.

Mr. Carruthers said that So-cal's cost of buying Gulf's 1.2 billion barrels in global oil re-serves, between $5 and $10 a equivalent to the $10 to $15 a barrel that Socal now typically spends, before taxes, developing new reserves.

He added that federal restrictions on new drilling sites also made the acquisition appealing, "It's not just getting access to reserves hut getting access to the land for exploration that has become a problem." he said.

Socal has been something of an exploration pioneer. It was the first company to strike oil in Saudi Arabia, in 1938, the first to be successful in the Hibernia field east ol Canada and, three years ago, it brought in the first three wildcat wells in the Santa Maria Basin, oll the coast of Santa Barbara and 100 miles (160 kilometers) north of Los Angeles.

The company, operating under the name Chevron, has also been the leading gasoline marketer in the western United States, with strength also in the Southeast. The Chevron-Gulf combination would create the largest gasoline retailer in the United States, according to Dan Lundberg, publisher of an oil and gas newsletter. It would have operations in every state but North Dakota and Wisconsin, and 10.2 percent of the total U.S. gasoline market.

All this, of course, assumes the blessing of the Federal Trade Commission. And already industry analysts are saying that several of Gulf's service stations in the Southeast, where existing retailing operations of the merger partners overlap, probably will (Continued on Page 9, Col. 6)

Gulf Pact Spurs Merger Wave's Foes in Congress

By Robert D. Hershey Jr. New York Times Service

WASHINGTON - The agree ment under which Standard Oil Co. of California is to buy Gull Corp. has touched off fresh congressional efforts to curb or prohibit such

"It is our intention to stop them dead in their tracks — Pickens. Socal, everyhody." J. Bennett Johnston of Louisiana, the ranking Democrat on the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee. said in an interview.

"It seems to me decidedly not in the public interest to use up the nation's credit to create windfall profits and thereby divert lunds from more useful endeavors such as drilling for more oil."

Mr. Johnston said he had directed his staff to draft an amendment that would prohibit the Gulf-Socal merger and mergers of other big oil companies, perhaps for six months. He said it would be offered on the Senate floor, perhaps with the reauthorization of the Federal Trade Commission, probably later this month.

Last week, Mr. Johnston unsuccessfully oflered an amendment to the Export Administration Act that sought to discourage oil company consolidations by making merged companies ineligible for (ederal drilling leases. The amendment failed, 52-42,

Analysts also expressed fears that the Federal Trade Commission, which as expected said Tuesday that it would conduct an antitrust review, would object to the agreement or drive an exceedingly hard bargain in approving it.

Although there was little immediate official reaction to the Gulf-Socal proposal, which would set a record in dollar terms, it was thought dikely that the accord would give new impetus to a bill sponsored by Representative Peter W. Rodino Jr. of New Jersey and

Mr. Johnston said he was more worried about the amount ol capital required to finance oil-company acquisitions and the possible "liquidation" of properties than he was about the industry's growing concentration. "It is not concentration per se that we're after." Mr. Johnston said. "Somewhere along the line you do get excessive concentration, but you're using up all this capital and all this effort to acquire one

Some people, however, deny that capital is consumed when a merger takes place. Unsuccessful bidders, they say, never have to draw down their credit lines, while the money paid out in agreements that are completed always winds up back in somebody's bank account. Mr. Johnston said he stood "in admiration" of T. Boone Pickens, chairman of Mesa Petroleum and an early hidder for Gulf, for his ability to profit from the takeover husiness. But, he said, Mr. Pickens's plans for creating royalty trusts at target companies would amount to their liquidation. He said, in fact, that Socal itself might be forced to liquidate assets

If interest rates rose and oil prices

The senator, who is from a major producing state, tends to side with independent oil and gas companies when forced to choose between them and the major companies. Sonesson to Buy Stake in Gambro, Cooperate on Research, Marketing

By Juris Kaza

Owen F. Bieber

onal Herald Tribuni STOCKHOLM -- Sonesson AB. the Swedish light-industry group, said Wednesday that it plans to buy 1.1 million shares of Gambro, the medical-equipment company specializing in dialysis and blood treatment

It also said the companies plan to cooperate in research and international marketing in the pharma-ceutical and health-care fields.

The agreement, which Gambro valued at 330 million kronor ($43.2 million) involves a transfer of 600,000 Class A shares and 500,000 Class B shares, giving Sonesson 23.6 percent of the votes in Gamhro and 8.4 percent of the share capital. The shares are being sold hy the Crawfoord family and a family foundation. B shares carry diminished voting rights and may be owned by non-Swedes.

Sonesson, which is owned by Volvo, is also taking an option to buy an additional 200,000 Class A shares, which would bring its voting influence in Gambro to 30.9

Analysts said Sonesson's action was part of a policy to expand the company's involvement in the pharmaceutical and bealth-care sector. Last year. Sonesson took a majority stake in Leo AB, which makes a broad range of drugs in-cluding antibiotics, headache remedies and cancer treatments. Somesson has also bought into Ferrosan.

NEW YORK — Prices were broadly lower at the close of the New York Stock Exchange Tuesday in moderate trading.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which skidded 12.67 Tuesday, was off 8.90 to 1,144.63. It had been down 13. Several analysts predicted the best of the property of the proper do at this point. The big traders have moved to Mr. Hertell said there is "a lot of speculation

Mr. Hertell said there is "a lot of speculation around that if the economy is so strong the Federal Reserve will have to righten to prevent inflation from rekindling."

Fed Chairman Paul A. Volcker, while not projecting the course of interest rates, said the economic growth was very strong and that budget deficits were a major problem.

The dollar's decline has become so pronounced that speculation has surfaced the Fed will have to tighten credit to protect it.

Fujitsu Increases Stake in Amdahl

By David E. Sanger New York Times Service

NEW YORK - Fujitsu Ltd., the big Japanese computer maker. has announced the purchase of another large-stake in Amdahl Corp. and a block of options on Amdahl stock that could bring its total share to about 49 percent of the Fujutsu's announcement Tuesday said that it had agreed with Heizer Corp., a publicly held in-vesting company, to buy Heizer's 6 million shares of Amdahl common at $23 a share. Last week, Heizer shareholders approved a plan to liquidate the company, and the company said Tuesday that the transaction totaled $189.2 million.

Fujitsu also purchased warrants for an additional 2.5 million Amdahl shares at $20,50 each. The warrants permit the holder to buy the shares at $2.50 each.

Amdahl stock rose sharply Tuesday on the New York Stock Exchange. closing at $18.625. up percent of the Amdahl shares out-$1.25. in heavy trading.

Officials of Amdahl, a competitor of International Business Machines Corp. in the market for mainframe computers, said Fujitsu had agreed not to acquire more than 49.5 percent of the company.

But analysis said Fujitsu now bad effective control of Amdahl and would likely use the U.S. company's label for a major attack on the U.S. mainframe and supercom-puter markets. But Ed Thompson, a spokesman for Amdahl, said Tuesday: "Mananagement still has complete control of the company. This allows us to maximize the resources of both corporations to be competitive in a ery competitive marketplace."

Fujitsu has worked with Amdahl for several years, assembling some computer components, building disk drives sold under the Amdahi brand name and exchanging technical findings and patent licenses. Fujitsn has also held about 30

FTC to Fight Warner Link To Polygram

WASHINGTON - The U.S. government has decided to go to court to block the merger of Warner records and Polygram, a venture that would create the considered. world's largest record company and a possible monopoly in part of the music industry.

The Federal Trade Commission said Tuesday that it plans to file a complaint in U.S. District Court in California asking for a temporary restraining order and a preliminary injunction to halt the merger, set to take effect after March 12.

"The proposed joint venture between Warner and Polygram records to merge their prerecorded music divisions would substantially lessen competition in the record and tape division of the music industry," the FTC said.

Warner called the FTC's decision "surprising and disappoint-ing" and said the company would fight it in court. Bell Canada Enterprises Inc. ex- and shareholders must not expect a

The agency pointed out that Warner, the second-largest U.S. record company, and Polygram, the sixth-largest, are among six compaing group, has contracted to sell telecommunications satellites nies that dominate the prerecorded music business.

The merger would make Warner-Polygram the largest distributor of prerecorded music in the world, controlling 26 percent of the U.S. market.

"When the six are shrunk to five, there is an opportunity for tacit or overt collusion to control pricing" in sales and the number of new records released, said Charles James, an FTC attorney. He said that although there now are some independent operators at certain levels of the record business, only six companies perform all functions: seeking out artists, making the recordings, manufac-turing tapes and records, distributing the music, promoting it and selling records and tapes through retail outlets and record clubs,

Warner officials said the merger cial year that ended in December is necessary to save Polygram, whose domestic sales are lagging, and create economies of scale that will help both companies counterbillion yen for 1983, reversing a act the effect of lost sales resulting from home taping.

T. Boone Pickens Jr., the chairman of Mesa Petroleum Co. and leader of an investment group that had hoped to acquire Gulf, had said he could raise about $6 billion in cash by selling all of Gulf's assets except its domestic reserves.

But one analyst, who asked not to be identified, said a large-scale settoff might be difficult for any company, including Socal, to carry off because refining and chemical markets were now depressed and buyers could be hard to find.

The Gulf acquisition, if it clears federal regulatory burdles, would nearly double Socal's existing reserves but would still do little to alter its reputation as the most in-ternational of the international oil companies. Joseph P. Russoniello, the U.S. attorney in San Francisco, said the company would plead guilty to the charges in the 40-count indictment, which had been handed up by a grand jury. The indictment, which had been electronic chips used in military expected, was the first against a major maker of computer chips for purported failure to follow guide-lines for the testing of circuits used in weapons systems. Because failure of an electronic chip can cause a weapon to fail or misfire, delicient testing is viewed seriously by the U.S. Defense Department, which is hoping that Tuesday's indictments will send a message to the rest of the industry.

Brian M. Bruh, an assistant inspector general of the Defense Department, said 14 other companies were under investigation for similar violations and that other indictments were expected,

According to the charges, National Semiconductor of Santa Clara, California, failed to adequately test chips that were sold to the military for use in all types of weapon systems. The indictment also charges that the company falsely certified to the government that the testing had been done.

National Semiconductor said the charges covered a period from 1978 to mid-1981 and that it was now in

A U.S. Capital Standard

By Nancy L. Ross

WASHINGTON - Foreign bankers meeting here have expressed concern over what they consider to be a threat by the United States to impose capital standards on banks beyond its borders.

The conference's chairman, Serge Bellanger, the U.S. representauve of the French bank Credit Industriel et Commercial, singled out this issue and taxation of multinational companies on the basis of worldwide profits as the most sen-sitive ones facing foreign bankers in the United States.

Also of concern is a pending Senate bill requiring equal treatment of U.S. banks overseas before foreign banks can expand operations here,

The U.S. proposals have been presented as part of an effort to You have a dual interest in u ing your national anth eralize their restriction banking in your home ry S. Reuss, a Democra sin and former Hou Committee chairman, at the conference.

Not only will such the world toward free vices; it will help preve ment of U.S. laws constitute U.S. discrimination against you," Mr. Reuss said.

Last June, the Federal Reserve said that U.S. multinational banking organizations should have capi-tal equivalent to at least 5 percent of their total assets.

A LATE DIVORCE

By A.B. Yehoshua. Translated by Hillel Halkin, 354 pp. $16.95. Doubleday, 245 Park Ave., New York, N.Y.

Reviewed by M.S. Kaplan

OVER the last 14 years, the Israeli writer A. B. Yehoshua has been sitting at his typewriter on Mount Carmel overlooking Hai-fa Bay, the Lebanese border at his back, and chronicling the lives of his countrymen from their psychological interiors. Israel's six wars in its brief 35-year history, its chaotic economy, its shifting borders have exacted their toll. The turbulence io which Yehoshua's characters find themselves has snapped all the tradi-tional moorings that serve to steady lives and give meaning to experience, especially the twin anchors of religion and nationalism. A typical Yehoshua character lives in an emotional air lock, searching for a way to join the mainstream of an orderly existence.

In his new novel, "A Late Divorce," it is now the bonds of family that have been loosened. leaving its members spinning with aimless urgency, despairing of some idea or ideal about which to establish an orbit and restore balance.

The story, which takes place in the nine days before the Passover holiday, concerns the pa-triarch of the Kaminka family. Yehuda Kaminks, who has returned to Israel from the United States to finalize a divorce with his wife, Naomi, Before her husband's flight from family and country, Naomi had entered a peri-od of encroaching madness that culminated in an attempt on Yehuda's life and caused her subsequent hospitalization. Now Yehuda has returned with an unexpected spring in his step, wearing stylish clothes. He has undergone a rejuvenation in his adopted country, having acquired not only a new land but a new lover. The hidden purpose of the divorce, we discover, is so that Yehuda can remarry and have his already conceived child bear his name.

Yehoshua tells this story with characteristic energy and inventiveness. Much of the book's suspense revolves around whether Yehuda's wife will grant him the divorce and under what conditions. But it is in the depiction of his characters' lives that Yehoshua's power as a oovelist is most apparent. Each chapter is nar-rated by a different member of the Kaminka family, guiding the reader through the churning feelings of resentment and anger triggered by the father's return. Io the course of the nine days, they all have their say: Yehuda Kaminka himself, his daughter and her husband, his oldest son and his homosexual lover, his youngest soo and his wife, his 7-year-old grandson, and his schizophrenic wife. And as we come to know all of these characters through their own thoughts, as well as through each other's eyes, a strife-ridden family portrait emerges.

"A Late Divorce" incorporates many of the themes and imagery found in Yehoshua's short stories and previous novel ("The Lover"), such as the disintegration of time, and Israel's omi-oous and punishing landscape. Io his earlier

Avraham B. Yehoshua

works, Israel's war-scarred history has provid ed the backdrop against which his characters personal conflict or existential condition is exposed and examined.

But the setting for "A Late Divorce" is far from the bullets and bombs of the front line. and the mention of hartle makes its way into the conversation only incidentally. It is as if the topic has lost its value as a subject for discussion, or even meditation. But what has impregnated every detail of these Israelis' lives is the terrible weariness and disillusionment these wars have spawned.

It is no accident that Yeboshua has the old father narrate the final chapter of this disturbing and provocative book on the first day of the Passover festival, the Jewish celebration of the Israelites exodus from Egypt. Wandering the desert for 40 years, the tribe had to wait until the generation born in slavery died out before being able to enter the Promised Land as a truly free people. Io a sense, this is the dilemma in which Israel finds itself today. Yehoshua is suggesting that many of the values and experiences of its previous generation — Israel's founding fathers — are oo longer serviceable founding fathers — are oo longer serviceable to the new generation as a response to the life threatening realities of the present day.

"A Late Divorce" is A. B. Yehoshua's sensitive and wise portrait of a generation struggling to fashion for itself a oew set of beliefs and attitudes without the benefit of their parents' example.

By Alan Truscott

SOME 40 years ago-a wise British writer, Skid Simon, posed the following question: If you are going to be on lead with two aces against a small slam in a suit, should you dou-

The answer, obvious to the experienced player, is that a double would be both nalve and foolish. The possible profits is quite small, while the possible loss is loss of the winning defense to the winning defense.

So East returned a spade, and the 'impregnable' slam was defeated.

Knowing whether to double with two aces is relatively easy.

Knowing what to lead can be much harder. Lead one of the aces? Lead another suit? Neather, surprisingly, was the solution on the diagramed deal.

East duly won the king and asked himself the obvious question: Why had his partner gone to the trouble of underleading an ace. Obviously, because he wanted a ruff.

Rimet Cup Replica Takes Shape

A worker at a Hanau, West Germany, factory displays the newlycast, solid-gold replica of World Cup soccer's Jules Rimet Cup. The original was stolen from the headquarters of the Brazialian Soccer Federation in Rio de Janiero last Dec. 20 and has not been recovered. Instituted in 1930, when World Cup competition began, the trophy was reserved for the tournament's first three-time winner and went unclaimed until 1970, when Brazil won its third title. The replica, a gift from the Kodak Company to the Brazilian federation, was cast from a model made when West Germany won the World Cup in 1954.

His Game Has Bradley's Number for Keeps

By Tony Komheiser

NEW YORK - No. 24 belongs to the ages now. It hangs high above the Madisoo Square Garden floor, along with Nos. 19, 22 and 10, for generations to remember with affection. Four jerseys from the greatest team I ever saw, the New York Knickerbockers of 1969 to 1973: Reed's, DeBusschere's, Frazier's and oow Bradley's. Camelot's team. A team of truth and beauty, a team of all for one and one for all, a team whose whole was always greater than the sum of its parts.

On a recent Saturday night, a man who has spent his adult life in public view, a man of discipline and accomplishment, warmed himself in the brilliant sun of gratitude. As 19,591 fans - including such former teammates as Dave DeBusschere, Earl Monroe, Jerry Lucas, Phil Jackson, Cazzie Russell, Dick Barnett and Dave Stallworth - cheered Justily, Bill Bradley, once a small forward and now a U.S. senator from New Jersey, was awarded the ultimate athletic honor: His uniform was retired.

"I remember years ago," Bradley told the crowd, "after a game in Chicago, a man coming up to me and asking me. Do you really like playing ball? "Yes, yes, I do,' I told him.

"I think I know what you mean,' he said. I used to play the trumpet in a band. We were good. So good that we got offers to tour. The others wanted to do it, but I didn't.

"Why not?" I asked him. It didn't seem secure. So I went to law school arms.

"'And do you like the law?' I asked him.

about to come. "I first heard about it last " he said. "I kind of felt like, well, peak moments." O.K." He waved his arms distractedly. "I'd had some second thoughts about it. Part of me said. 'I don't think I should have it retired until after Mooroe, maybe even Barnett.' Part of me asked the question: 'Do you deserve this?'

"But ultimately, I said that's for others to

"No. I don't think I was great - oot if you define great through points. But if you define it in different terms it becomes more complex. In the pros I really had to sense what my role was; I had to be much more subtle than io college."

He smiled at the sense of what he'd done, how he'd changed, who he was. "That's why this means so much to me. Because it's done within the concept of the team. There was an element of truth to that team.

"It wasn't just that we won, but how we won. We did it in a way that energized everybody. The crowd was a part of it, and we were a part of

If he chose, Bradley could paper the walls of his office with photos that give testimony to his prowess. Instead, he has hung only two. When Bradley left professional baskethall in 1977, he left for good. Unlike so many athletes who suffer withdrawal pains and cannot adjust to a life beyond the playing fields, he never looked back in longing. Not since then has he played a game of basketball. No full court. No half court. Not even one-on-one. What's done is

And yet there was a time last summer. "I had turned 40," Bradley said, "and for a present somebody had given me a tape of the seventh game of the 1970 championship. I took it home and played it for my 5-year-old daughter; it was the first time she'd ever seen me it, individually and as a whole. We were all playing basketball. She knows Willis and Dave, breathing in at the same moment, all exhaling at and when she saw the tape she said, 'There's Mr. the same moment. Maybe in one game, or a twoof-three, we might be overpowered. But if the

WASHINGTON - For the secand straight year, the United States Football League is utlizing what one National Football League personnel man called its "buffer zone" to steal a major amount of glitter from the NFL in the great draft

The USFL already has signed between 6 and 12 potential first-round NFL draft choices, reaping invaluable media exposure and raising rookie selary levels so high that NFL officials now are gearing for major negotiation battles with first-round agents this spring.

"It is this simplicity that makes the uneducated more effective than the educated when addressing pop-ular audiences during an election year. You didn't bring enough licorice jelly beans."

'I'm sorry, Master. So it is your opinion that nothing can be done about deficits when a country is contesting for a new ruler?"

"Nothing of substance. One must think of the budget as a lovely river. The deficits are like the snow in the mountains that no one sees. Once spring comes, the snow melts and becomes a torrent of water and the river becomes a flood washing away everything that man has built and there is nothing left but a de-pression in the land."

You sound like Martin Feldsteen," I said,
"It's Feldstein, not Feldsteen," the Master said angrily. "And don't

Bolshoi to Broadway and Beyond

After 'On Your Toes,' the Kozlovs Adjust to the Balanchine Style

By Jennifer Dunning New York Times Service

N EW YORK "How's the show going?" a genial beadwaiter asked as Leonid Kozlov and Valentina Kozlova, recently seen on Broadway in the revival of the musical "On Your Toes," slid into a restaurant booth. "The show is over there now." Kozlov replied, pointing across the street to the New York State Theater, where the New York City Ballet was in its winter season.

There have been many "shows" since the Russian dancers defected to the United States in September 1979, while on tour with Moscow's Bolshoi Ballet. But now, it seems, the Kozlovs have found a bome with the City Ballet, which they joined as principal dancers Lonia and Valia to everyone.

George Balanchine, a founder and the chief choreographer of the City Ballet, had created the dance for the original production of "On Your Toes," but he became ill in the fall of 1982 and died last April.

Balanchine wanted to see me privately.

just before I auditioned for the musical, Kozlova said. "We talked about the show and art. He said he was surprised my husband and I hadn't asked to come into the City Ballet when we defected. I explained we'd been so new. The repertory was so different. And Lonia wanted to choreograph for different companies. But Balanehine iovited us 10

While rehearsing the Kozlovs for their roles in "On Your Toes." Peter Martins, oow co-balletmaster in chief of the City Ballet with Jerome Robbins, made the invitation

Learning the City Ballet's style of classical dancing was just the latest in a series of challenges. "We left the Bolshoi, and every-thing changed," Kozlov said. "But I think it's easier to change your life when you are doing it with farmly. Because, from the first day, we couldn't speak English. We had no friends here. But we could work and dance and scream together."

The two dancers performed a wide-ranging international modern ballet repertory before joining City Ballet. "I danced a 'Swan Lake' the night after I danced Glen Tetley's 'Rite of Spriog,' " Kozlova said, "And it was proba-bly the best 'Swan Lake' I ever did. Changing styles helps you emotionally and technical-

But following such Russian stars as Natalia Makarova and Galioa Panova into "On Your Toes" was an even more unusual change. And playing the mad Russian in the musical was a nightmare, at first, for Kozlov, "Lonia all his life danced dramatie roles, and he is a very serious person," Kozlova said. Kozlov knew that Balanchine and George Abbott, the show's director, were sure his wife could play her role. And he had heard a great deal about the role's first interpreter, George della Pena. "I'm so oervous," Kozlov said. "I have to be better. And I bave to smile all the time and talk English.

He smiles oow, however, remembering a visit that the 96-year-old Abbott, one of the legends of the American theater, paid him backstage after bis first performance:
"'Lenny,' he said. 'Good. Fine. Don't feel nervous. But when you realize what all this strange English means, it will be better."

Neither Kozlov was offended by the musical's broad treatment of Russian ballet stars of another era. "We knew the history of these stars." Kozlov said. "Valentina's old teacher used to talk about ballet 'before the catastro-phe,' which means the Revolution, and bow they'd dance one or two performances, go relax in Switzerland, then come back for another performance.

There was a little change after the 'catas-trophe,' but not much. Now you can't go to Switzerland to relax and then come back. And we still have those characters. Like Pisetskava. She'll come into a crowded rehearsal room and send everyone out because she wants to rehearse. She's always scheduled, and oever dances. That's great stuff.

"lo City Ballet, there's a different atmosphere. They want to dance in this company.

They never talk about money or jobs. They work from morning to evening and never ask when they'll floish. They always want more rehearsals and more performances. And that's what it should be in theater."

The lack of coaches at City Ballet troubled the Kozlovs at first. "But you pick it up from the other dancers, or from the films you can see at the Dance Collection at Lincoln Center," Kozlov said. They regret that Balan-ehine, who tailored roles to his dancers, is not there to work with them. "Though the changes are sometimes confusing." Kozlova said. "There are different versions of his bellets. Which de you letter?" ballets. Which do you learn?"

But the Kozlovs say they feel they are adjusting to City Ballet. "It's a different style - lighter, faster, completely new," Kozlov said. "But it's not a shock. We just learn the ehoreography very carefully."

What were some of the stylistic differences

they had to get used to? "The musical accents are down, in Balan-chine ballets," Kozlova said. "It's not like being with the music, but more like syncopa-tion. Both were interested in the amount of dancing that takes place oo the half-toe in Balanchine's ballets, and the lack of big jumps and big plies.

They recently performed for the first time in Balanchine's distillation of Act 2 of "Swan

Lake," in which the Swan Queen and the prince meet for the first time. It is a ballet they were familiar with in other versions. most with a second act attributed to Lev Ivanov, Kozlov said: "My feeling is that there is much more tragedy, more movement, more speed in Tchaikovsky's music than in what the chorcographers did. Ivanov was too gen-ile, for me. One hundred years ago people met each other differently. So Balanchine is right. And he tells the whole story in that

The Balanchine ballets they have most enjoyed performing so far include "Episodes,"
"Concerto Barocco" and "Western Sympho-

So now I'm a Russian cowboy," Kozlov said. "You know, there are a lot of cows in Tammy Wynette is quoted in a forthcoming book as saying she has been dependent on painkillers and used the narcotic sedative Demerol, but that she was oever "addicted." The book, due out in April, is "Ragged but Right: The Life & Times of George Jones." by Dolly Carlisle. George Jones and Wynette were married from 1968 until they divorced in 1975. The book quotes the country singer as saying last November, "I've depended on Demerol, plus a lot of other medications, to get me through an awful lot of shows and a lot of pain. There's been many nights when I thought I would die if I had to go on stage and I depended on pain pills to get me through many times." She said her 13 stomach operations started her use of drugs.
